Reunion

Continued from page 1C

Collins, sat writing the words of a song as the song "heister" lined them out to the congregation. In her own handwriting, these words have been preserved. Set to the tune of "The Good Old Way" found in Southern Harmony # 156, Dan Smith will lead reunion attendees in singing this old church song on Saturday. It is entitled "Come All Ye Righteous Here Below." Nancy Souther wrote nine stanzas of the song. Here are three:

"Come all ye righteous here below,
Oh Ha-le, hallelujah!
Let nothing prove your overthrow,
Oh Ha-le, hallelujah!

Chorus:
But call on me both day and night,
Oh Ha-le, hallelujah!
And I'll visit you with delight,
Sing glory hallelujah!

When the day of judgment doth draw nigh,
Oh Ha-le, hallelujah!
Poor sinners will lament and cry,
Oh Ha-le, hallelujah!

For the earnest deeds that they have done,
Oh, Ha-le, hallelujah!
They will repent in time to come,
Oh, Ha-le, hallelujah!

A solemn memorial service will honor those who have moved from this life to the next—a large number since the last reunion.

We will gladly welcome familiar faces, those who return to their roots year after year. We will help those who come for the first time to feel welcome through connections that have been made since July, 2007. And if you would like to come, too, and see what's up with this large family, you will find a warm reception.

In 1989 my cousin, the late Watson B. Dyer, nominated me to take his place as family historian. Without even asking me if I would accept the job, I was suddenly plunged into a task I didn't anticipate. But one of the great pleasures of my life since then has been contacting people throughout America to help them find their roots. I don't always succeed in giving them the right links, but I've made many new friends and have more "cousins" than I thought possible. The Russian writer in his famous novel, Anna Kerenina, wrote: "All happy families resemble one another; every unhappy family is unhappy in its own way." We're one big happy family and that's a good way to be.
